

Mark Richard

Mark Richard was born and grew up in the Franklin area in the 1960's. He attended the University of Southwestern Louisiana and majored in Visual Art with a concentration in Printmaking and Drawing. In taking archaeology as an elective in 1980, he was hired by his instructor, A. Frank Servello, to do artifact illustrations, soil profiles, maps, and field work. He worked for New World Research (now Prentice Thomas and Associates) on sites in Alabama, Pennsylvania, and Florida. He currently studies and writes on solstice and equinox configurations of mound sites in Louisiana and east Texas, engraves and prints his original art, and works at his career of providing IT consulting services through his company BusinessTech.
